

FRIDAY NEWCHURCH

9th March 2018

WORLD MATHS DAY

Wednesday marked World Mathematics Day and at Newchurch the children were thoroughly engaged in investigative challenges. The children worked on a wide range of problems from the systematic arithmetic methods to open-ended logic investigations.

The passion for mathematics is obvious and the children's ability to reason mathematically was hugely impressive. As our school Twitter account shows, the children had to work independently and collaboratively throughout the day, creating mathematical works of art, learning new vocabulary and solving complex logic problems through brilliant.org.

If you want to know more about mathematics at Newchurch, need advice in how to support your child at home or even want to get involved in school then do not hesitate in letting your child's class teacher know.

Oliver Morris Y2: We cut out dinosaur shapes from a sheet and then made our own dinosaurs and even named them. Mine was called 'the Billosaurus.'

Leighton Nunnerley Y2: It was amazing making dinosaurs with different shapes.

Jensen Butterworth Y6: Our challenge was to build a geodesic dome with paper with sections of triangular paper. The frustrating bit was trying to get it to stick together, but we persevered and have nearly completed it.

POND WORKING PARTY

On Tuesday, we had our first working party for the allotment and pond. If you would like to join Mrs Sizer, we are meeting every Tuesday at 3.15pm - 4.15pm

THANK YOU SERVICE

Thank you to all the parents, grandparents and family members who attended the Thank You Service today. It was wonderful to see and hear the children giving their personal and heartfelt messages of thanks. The children really shone as usual. I hope you all enjoy a very happy weekend filled with lovely family time.

TWITTER

Our new Twitter feed has attracted lots of attention, which is great! Aaron Becker, the author of 'The Journey' trilogy, has liked and retweeted our tweets from book week!
